

What is your story? If you don't write your story, who will — and what will they say about you? We enlighten you on the benefits of writing your story, encourage you with the stories of other authors, and empower you with the writing, editing, publishing, and marketing strategies to get your story into the hands of readers.

Krystalore Crews

Best-Selling Author · Resilience & Storytelling

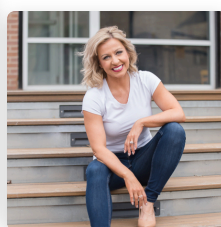

- ★ 22-Year Retired SMSgt, U.S. Air Force
- ★ Amazon Best-Selling Author
- ★ Cancer Survivor
- ★ 28-Time Marathoner · 50-Mile Ultra Finisher
- ★ Certified Life & Somatic Coach
- ★ Founder, HER NEXT MISSION

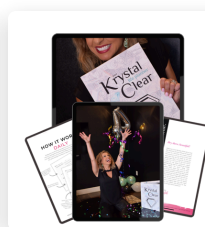

Krystalore Crews is an Amazon best-selling author, keynote speaker, and resilience coach who turned her hardest seasons into a body of work that helps women write their own comeback. A 22-year retired U.S. Air Force Senior Master Sergeant, cancer survivor, and 28-time marathoner, she writes from lived experience — not theory. Her featured book, The Road to Resilience: 5 Ways to Have Confidence in Seasons of Change, hands readers a practical map for staying grounded when everything is shifting. Through her books, keynotes, corporate wellness programs, and Revive & Thrive retreats — and her execution firm, Activate4Impact — she helps high-achieving women put their story on the page and into the hands of the readers who need it.

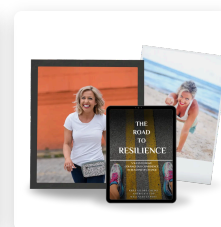

The Road to Resilience
(Featured)

Leave No MilSpouse Behind

Is Manifesting Bullsh*t?

Krystal Clear Life Planner

PROVOCATIVE TALKING POINTS FOR THE HOST

1. You went from a hospital bed to 28 marathon finish lines — what's the one chapter of your story you almost didn't write, and why did it matter most?
2. You say if we don't write our story, someone else will. What do most women get wrong about telling their story — and what are your “5 ways to have confidence in seasons of change”?
3. How does putting your story on the page change a woman's leadership, her health, and even her corporate team — and where does that show up in your retreats and your work with Activate4Impact?